Everyone agrees that preserving our heritage is a national necessity, because of its cultural, social, economic and profound environmental dimensions. This goal should be reflected in strategic visions and implemented in practical steps. Our relationship with our great heritage that is the cultural wealth of our country is not an abstract. As we cling to a history and culture that we have inherited from our parents and grandparents, we reveal our appreciation and pride in it, as a reality to cherish. Strategic visions and practical steps to preserve the heritage will not prove successful without a realization of the fundamental need for heritage to face present and later challenges. The future of our immensely rich heritage and its continuity as both renewable and sustainable depend on raising generations with a better understanding and appreciation of their heritage. Therefore, our target is to recognize its importance as the foundation on which to build to revive it, share its awareness and benefit from it. Taking care of our heritage requires both great effort and everyone's participation. It is time for us to take the lead as a civilization in the discharge of our responsibilities and to start an innovative movement that properly reflects the prestige of our heritage in terms of openness to progress and the sharing of ideas and values. Our society, deeply rooted in a rich culture and the desire to contribute to the maintenance of our heritage gave birth to the foundation of the Al-Turath Institution in 1417 H (1996 AD). Since its establishment, Al Turath Philanthropy Foundation has achieved marked success in reaching its objectives in a number of areas of national heritage protection. It was also able to attain a significant presence in the media covering the issue of heritage inside and outside the Kingdom. Once Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation established itself and built strategic partnerships with cooperative institutions, it seemed appropriate to begin a new phase of the project to reflect its founding goals and initiatives. These continue to open wider fields of heritage and of cooperation with partners interested in heritage prospects. The next phase will contribute to achieving the noble goals and aspirations that we all seek, through the framework of an integrated and harmonious work system. Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation looks at the future with the great ambition of realizing our heritage as an integral part of life to guide future generations.

Historic Documentation

Since its establishment, Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation has been committed to building and archiving Historic documentation because of its significance to human life. Without documentation, the lessons and wisdom so gained from the wealth of experience, breadth of knowledge, evolution in science, and advances in civilization would not exist.

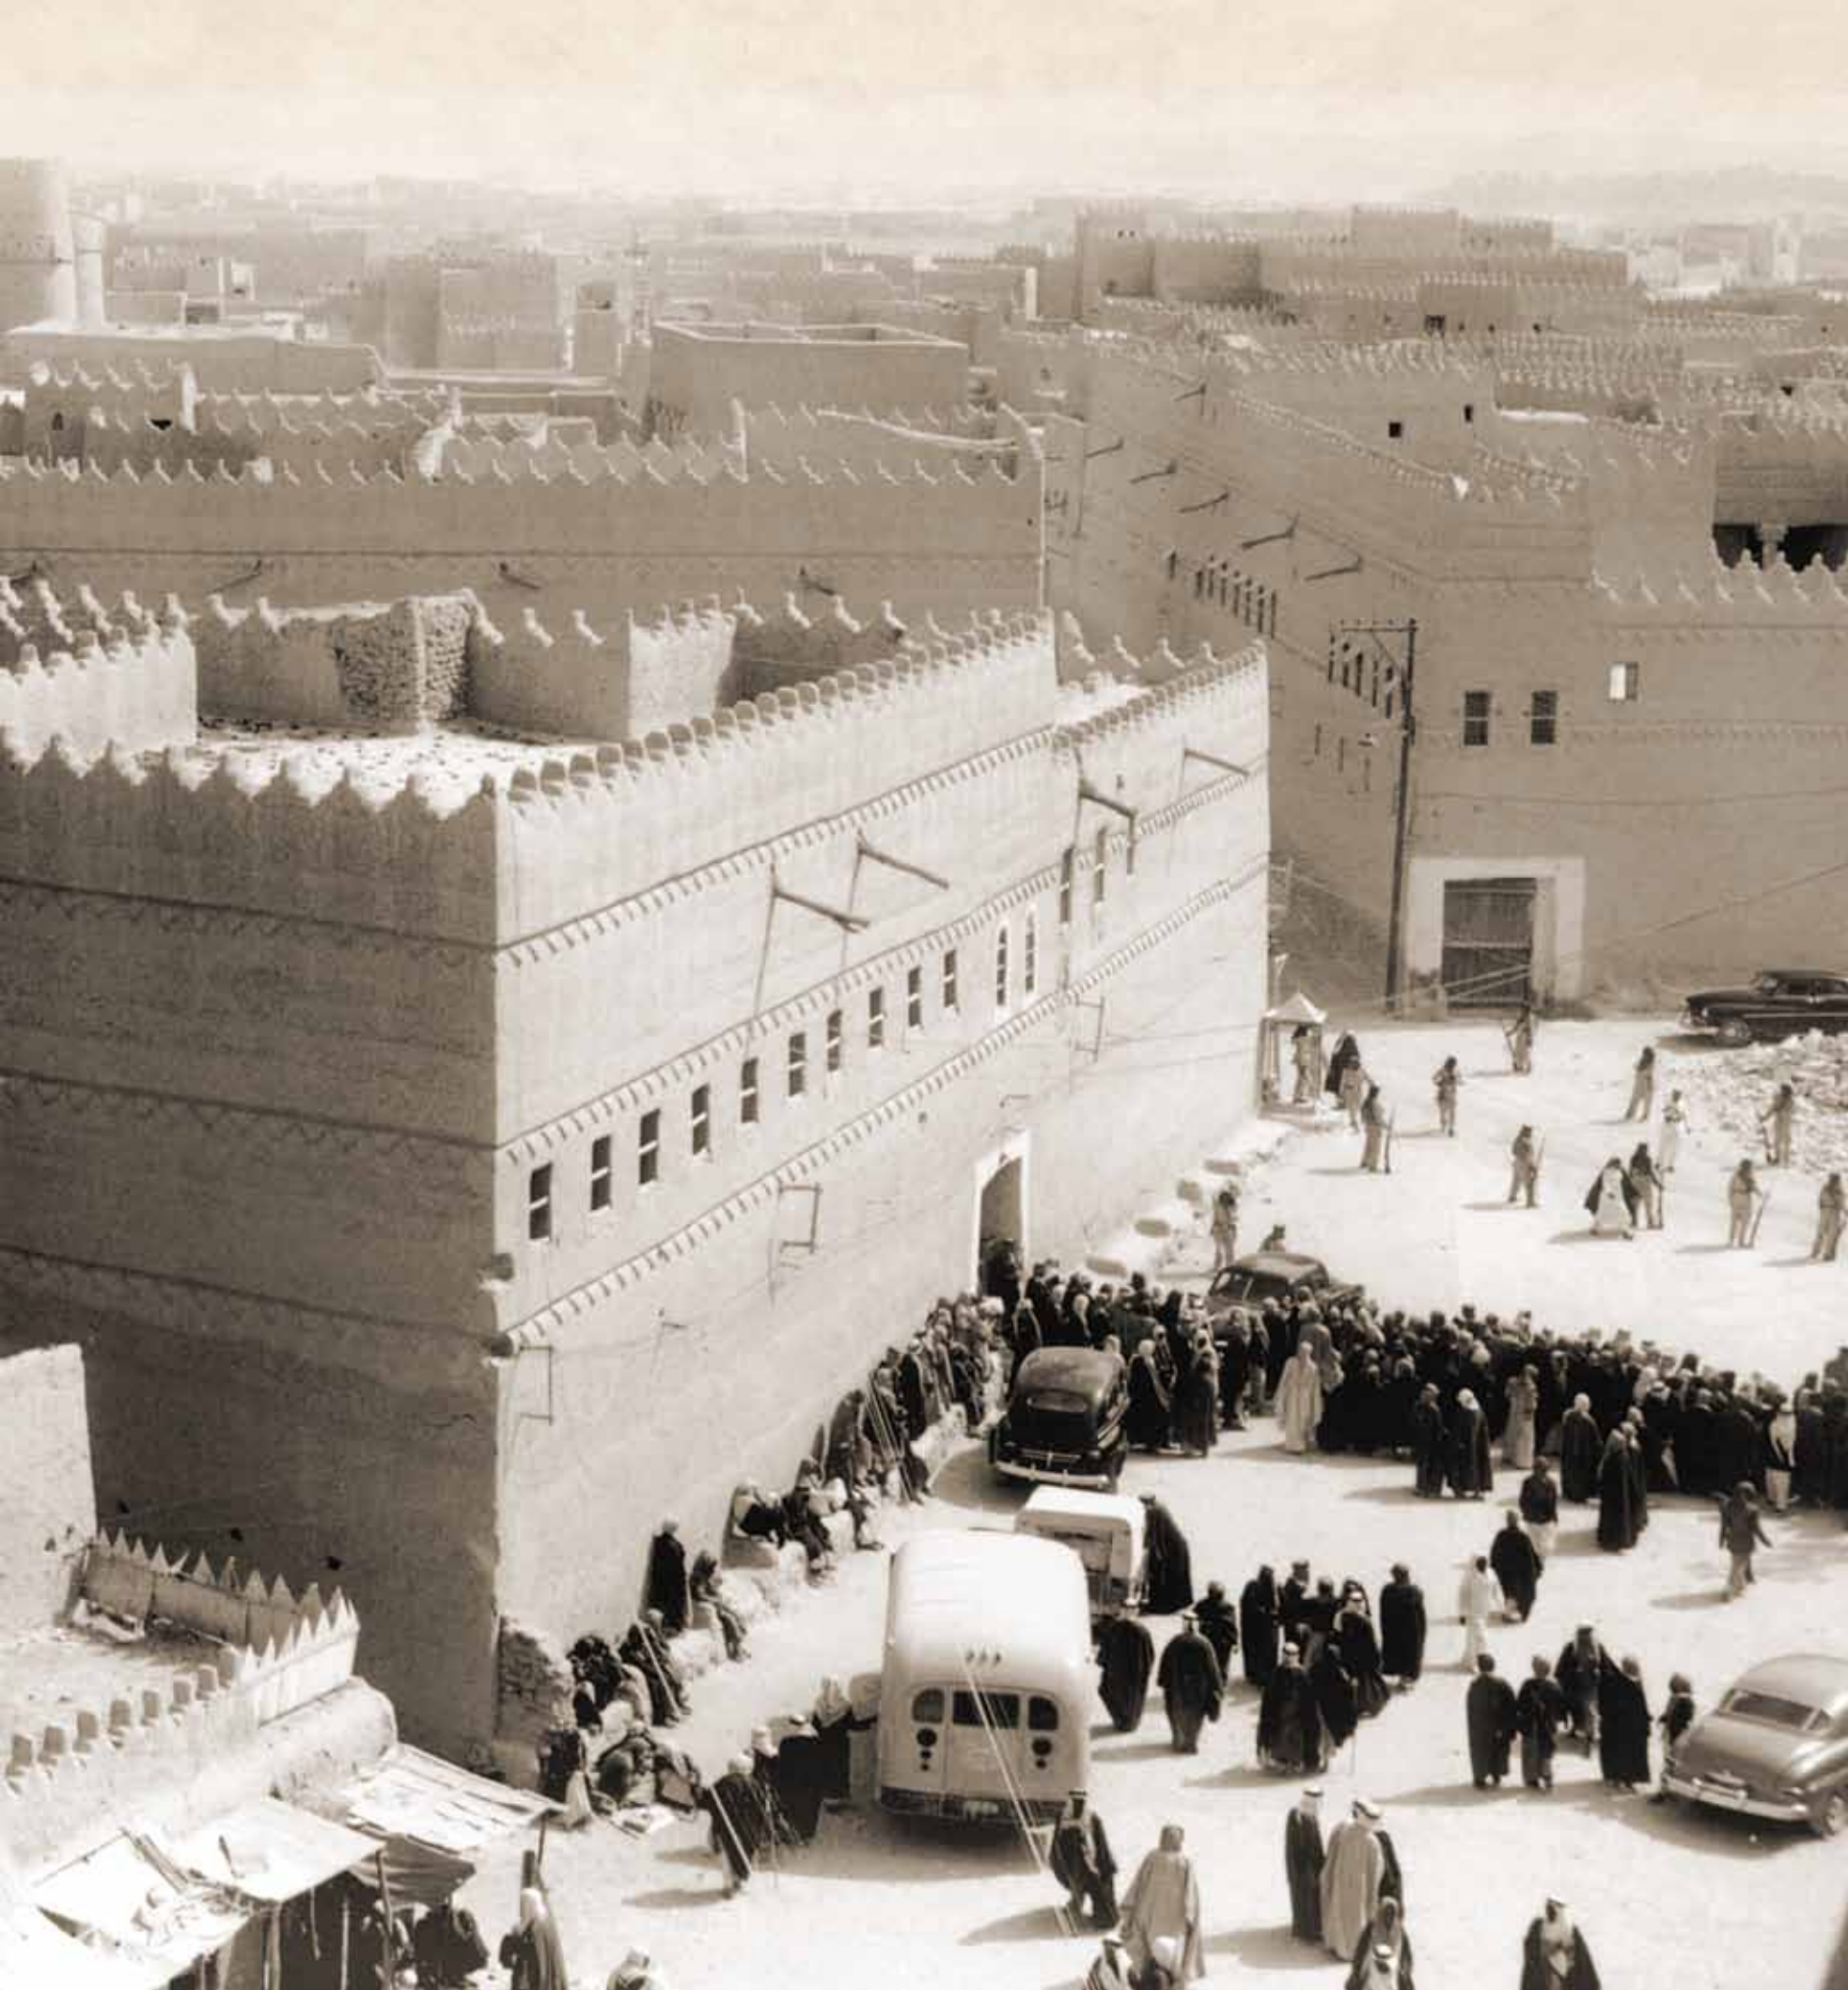

Thus documentation strengthened the link between generations, improved communication between peoples, curated a Nation's memory and preserved the heritage of human civilization. On this mankind can build and continue to progress and evolve until the end of civilization.

Civilizations will continue to advance as long as human memory retains its vitality and its ability to regenerate, insuring the legacy is passed on.

Some of the Foundation's achievements in Historic documentation include:

- National Archives of Historic Photographs.
- Archives of King Khalid's Images.
- The Model Capital Institute.
- Prince Sultan ibn Salman Islamic Architectural Heritage Database.

National Archives of Historic Photographs

The image is one of the most important means of authentication. It is the prime source of scientific, scholarly and Historic documentation. It stands alongside archaeological finds, urban evidence, manuscripts, digital statistics, audio recordings, animated films, and oral narrative as evidence and Historic corroboration.

The image has a unique ability to reflect many aspects of life. Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation was keen on employing the power of the image in this area, by contributing to the King Fahd National Library project; to create a national archive, comprised of a wide range of rare Historic images chronicling the stages of life in the development of the Kingdom, when photography was in its infancy.

Great efforts were made to gather information about the history of photography, and its patrons in the Arabian Peninsula. Eventually, the stages of the collecting this important heritage culminated in the creation of a unique and invaluable national archive.

Regarding the importance of the Historic documentation, Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation proposed the idea of establishing a national archive to the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques King Salman Bin Abdul-Aziz Al-Saud when he was the Governor of Riyadh Province, General Supervisor of King Fahd National Library, and Chairman of the Supreme Committee. The archive was to celebrate 100 years since the unification of the Kingdom and to create a “National Archive for Historic Images” at the King Fahd National Library in Riyadh. This archive was to be a source of distinct and notable Saudi history reflecting cultural and educational elements emanating from the Kingdom’s past, and to be a reference bank documented for the benefit of researchers and scholars and those interested in Saudi Arabia’s history.

Practical steps announcing the establishment of the National Archive for Historic Photographs, through the sponsorship of the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, may Allah protect him, began during the official opening ceremony of the King Fahd National Library on the fifth of Ramadan 1417 H (1997 AD). This led to the issuance of the Royal Court’s approval to establish a National Archive for Historic images at King Fahd National Library. The library was to take advantage of modern technologies to preserve historic images of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, processing them, and facilitating access to them through sophisticated electronic systems.

The Foundation has so far implemented the first stage of the national archive’s plan amounting to 30 thousand images. It also has implemented the second stage, which included 14 thousand images for the King Fahd national library, collected from various sources within and outside the Kingdom.

Archives of King Khalid`s Images

The King Khalid Foundation, is intent on documenting the heritage of King Khalid, mercy be upon him, to underscore for future generations his legacy to the homeland, in the various positions of responsibility he attained during his life. This will come through the publication of an illustrated book, which will document the most important stages in the life of the departed King, a life rich in achievements at the local and international levels.

Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation contributed in preparing the archives of King Khalid`s images along with its efforts to complete the National Archive of Historic Photographs, which deals with the monarchs of the Kingdom, and senior figures from across different regions of the realm. For each monarch, the archives feature a documented biography with images of the stages of his life.

God have mercy on him

The Institute of The Capital

The history of establishing the Model Capital Institute began when King Abdul Aziz, gave the order to allocate a portion of his palace for the education of his children. This was to be the nucleus for the establishment of the Institute.

In 1360 H (1940 AD) and throughout his reign, King Saud, allocated a building in Nasiriyah Palace, with the name Al-Anjal institute for this purpose, and so the Institute witnessed a revival, and began to attract large numbers of students among princes and others from different regions of Saudi Arabia.

In 1385 AH (1965 AD) a Royal Order was published naming the institute the “Model Capital Institute”, a name it carries to this day. Currently it offers four educational stages: kindergarten, elementary, middle, and secondary. Each stage comprises a large number of classrooms, laboratories libraries and sports facilities.

Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation mounted, at the Model Capital Institute, the Historic photo archive, launched on 13th Rabei Al-Awal 1427 H (April 11, 2006 AD), under the patronage of His Royal Highness Prince Ahmed Bin Abdul-Aziz, the Vice Interior Minister -at that time- and the head of the Graduate Association at the Institute. The Graduate Association took the decision to name the Archive after His Royal Highness Prince Sultan Bin Salman Bin Abdul-Aziz, in recognition of his adoption of the idea.

Introduction

Registering the Islamic Architectural Heritage Around the World

The Research Centre for Islamic History, Art and Culture (IRCICA), subsidiary of the Organisation of Islamic Cooperation (OIC) maintains a database relating to the Islamic sites and monuments which constitute the architectural heritage of the Muslim world.

This major initiative was made possible thanks to the generous sponsorship of H.R.H. Prince Sultan Ibn Salman Ibn Abdulaziz, Secretary General, Supreme Commission for Tourism, and Founder-President, Heritage Foundation (Al-Turath), Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. The program to establish a database was included in the work plans of IRCICA starting from 2006 and commended by the Islamic Conference of Foreign Ministers and the Islamic Conference of Tourism Ministers in their various sessions.

The database program aims to register the Islamic archeological and architectural heritage assets around the world, depict them by recording comprehensive information on their history and present state, their environment, physical plan and features, past and present functions, restorations done, etc., and by that way, to contribute to their preservation, development and promotion worldwide. The database includes all sorts of information, in a way to meet the needs of all research disciplines and sectors of activity – archeology, architecture, tourism, etc. Establishment and maintenance of the database will involve regular updating. Focal points will be designated by each country, to provide necessary information on their sites and monuments to IRCICA through an interactive on-line process.

In addition to data collected and elaborated by IRCICA, information is collected and provided to IRCICA by the government institutions and non-governmental organizations in charge of dealing with preservation of monuments in OIC member countries, and in other countries having Islamic architectural heritage. These data will be processed in the Central Base Unit operated by IRCICA using the internationally adopted criteria for the selection and collation.

The Database shall be treated as set of digital information to be kept in the Internet which would include detailed information about up to 100000 Islamic architectural heritage monuments to be entered in an estimated period of ten years. The information will include descriptions of geographical location, photographs and plans, facts and figures, assessments of present condition and future prospects, for each monument.

About the Program

- Taking into consideration acquired experiences, technology development and enlargement of the database, the program is under permanent improvement and upgrading.
- The program is an Web based system – it can be accessed by anyone, anywhere, anytime; it is open to public, up to date, user-friendly, integrated, scalable, reliable, centralized; and has widespread usage, mostly current information, and live updates.
- The program makes use of a G.I.S.-based system – all properties are geographically based; the properties can be seen on maps and satellite images based on satellite links. A small set of data with one image is accessible on the Google Map and similar programs.
- There are four data levels of dossier for each property: (a) Basic Data; (b) Property per se; (c) Property in Urban context; (d) Supporting documents- digital library and archive.
- The basic level is fully accessible for anyone. Other levels are accessible for registered users, partners in the program, or interested parties affiliated to research institutions or projects.

Registration will be regulated by protocols or agreements.

The aim is to register 100000 properties by incorporating data to be supplied by the OIC member countries' concerned institutions, during a period of ten years.

Implementation Mode

- The Central Base Unit operated by IRCICA will be connected to the focal points to be designated by the Member States and in other countries which have Islamic heritage assets.
- The Central Base Unit will be capable of providing different interfaces for different levels: project management, data entry, editorial work, approval of publishing and viewing. The data, map and internet servers are located at IRCICA, Istanbul.
- The Member State Unit should be responsible for content creation and entry using the on-line questionnaire and will have remote access for data entry.
- Regional Sub-Centers should be established at a later development phase to deal with specific aspects of heritage in the regions.

Program Objectives

- To properly document the Islamic Architectural Heritage and making it available to all interested parties.
- To create a set of recommendations for preservation and development services integrating tourism industry and supporting activities (e.g. agricultural and use of alternative energies).
- To develop education and training in the fields related with program activities.
- To support development of arts and crafts program related to specific sites as the main contribution to tourism development.
- To support identification of key themes and regions where heritage is under-represented, their nomination and documentation and review and selection processes.
- To support post-listing assistance and outreach to site management.
- To present heritage globally through: Internet services, TV news programs, Publications, Seminars, Promotion of selected destinations through business and political meetings.
- To establish 'The Virtual Museum of Islamic Arts' aiming to connect virtually architectural monuments with its dislocated artifacts.
- To propose accesses, virtual and physical, to monuments through set up of regional hubs for communication.
- To prepare Hypothetical Tourist Routes: regional types, following important historic events, trade roads, Hajj routes, etc.

National Program for the Preservation of Historic Mosques

His Royal Highness Prince Sultan bin Salman bin Abdulaziz Al Saud, when he was the Chairman of the Saudi Commission for Tourism and Antiquities (SCTA), consistent with His Highness's commitment to serving the houses of Allah and Islamic urban heritage, adopted the National Program for the Care of Historic Mosques.

Since its launch in 1417 H (1996 AD), Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation began to take care of mosques in Saudi Arabia and has also assumed responsibility for documenting and restoring a number of historic mosques in all regions and villages of the Kingdom.

The charitable reconstruction and restoration of the houses of Allah is important because it revitalizes the historic mosques venerating the many prayers performed there since their foundation and honoring their great impact on the lives of people. The first founders set out from those historic mosques to establish this blessed nation and achieve its national unity. Therefore, Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation chose to play a major role in the restoration of Historic mosques, allowing them to resume their social and religious functions and remind future generations of how the mosques were the basis for all that is good, thanks to Allah. The Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques and the Crown Prince continue to show great interest in preserving the Historic heritage of mosques throughout the country.

The idea of launching the National Program for the Preservation of Historic Mosques is the result of a vision conceived by His Royal Highness Prince Sultan bin Salman bin Abdulaziz, in collaboration with the then Minister of Islamic Affairs, Endowments, Da'wa and Guidance, presented to His Royal Highness Prince Sultan Bin Abdulaziz, then Crown Prince, Second Deputy Prime Minister, Minister of Defense and Aviation, and Inspector General. HRH Sultan bin Abdulaziz approved the sponsorship of the program for the preservation, reconstruction, restoration, and documentation of the history of mosques on 19 Jumada I 1425 H (13 August 2005 AD). HRH provided support for the first phase of the program. After the success of the program in the restoration of a number of mosques, HRH directed that the National Program be presented as a gift to the Ministry of Islamic Affairs, Endowments, Da'wa and Guidance. At that time, the name "National Program for the Preservation of Historic Mosques" was adopted for the program.

The scope of work includes the inventory of historic mosques, the development of a scientific plan to document them, and the restoration in a proper way that ensures the preservation of the mosque's urban character. The work will be done in accordance with the priorities of restoration, timetable, and allocated budget for the restoration of the identified mosques. In addition, an endowment that supports the future maintenance of mosques must be established.

Next, Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation with the participation of the Ministry of Islamic Affairs, Endowments, Da'wah and Guidance carried out tasks related to the implementation of this program in accordance with a precise plan of action, which was divided into successive phases. In the first phase, the Ministry provided the Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation with available information about the mosques of interest.

The opening of the historic Imam Shafii Mosque in the Historic Jeddah, in the presence of Prince Khalid bin Abdullah bin Abdulaziz, Prince Meteb bin Abdullah Ibn Abdul Aziz, Prince Sultan bin Salman bin Abdul Aziz and Prince Mishal bin Majid bin Abdul Aziz, 28 Shaaban 1436 H, (16 July 2015 AD)

In turn, the Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation selected mosques with distinct urban and Historic characteristics and presented a list of these mosques to the Ministry for approval. Once the mosques received approval, they were added to the main list of mosques to be restored.

The program received the support of the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques King Salman bin Abdul Aziz. Prince Sultan bin Salman bin Abdul Aziz announced the restoration of the historic Hanafi Mosque in historic Jeddah, where King Abdulaziz prayed, and also the restoration of a number of historic mosques in Al-Madinah Al-Munawwarah. As part of its efforts in this program, Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation organized a number of field tours to various regions of the Kingdom to survey Historic mosques and evaluate them for restoration, resulting in the publication of a book entitled "National Program for Historic Mosques" in 1437 H (2016 AD), as a scholarly effort to document these mosques

Urban Heritage Preservation Projects

Since its establishment in 1417 H (1996 AD), the Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation has been able to contribute significantly to documenting many architectural heritage landmarks inside and outside the Kingdom by conducting scholarly studies on the history of these monuments, their architectural character, the materials used in their construction, and other essential information. In the spirit of preserving architectural integrity, the Foundation carried out these works on behalf of different actors, including government and private individuals.

The preservation of urban heritage is one of the main objectives for which the Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation was founded, because this heritage is closely linked to the identity of Saudi Arabia and its cultural heritage, and in consideration of the fact that urban heritage is a reflection of the essence of civilizations and values of their society.

Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation's efforts consisted in preserving and restoring a number of the most important Historic buildings, including mosques, palaces of King Abdulaziz and other authentic houses in all regions of the Kingdom.

Al-Turath Cultural Forum

The Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation seeks to serve the cultural heritage in the Kingdom through a regular participation in local symposia as well as regional and international forums. Al-Turath plays an important role in the revitalization of the cultural movement in the Kingdom, by organizing a number of cross-cultural activities and seasonal events. These events held over the past few years, included organizing exhibitions, seminars, conferences, lectures and training courses that converge the many aspects of heritage preservation.

The Foundation has demonstrated its effectiveness by introducing new reflections onto the cultural scene that highlight the richness of Arab and Islamic heritage in general and Saudi heritage in particular. How effective this has been is characterized by the openness to the experience by others, through the involvement of a large number of foreign experts interested in the Saudi, Arab and Islamic heritage and their perspective on this history. The interest in this combined heritage derives from the importance of cultural interaction in a world that has become, in terms of communication and national interaction, a 'global village'.

Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation also recorded an active presence in Arab and international conferences focused on the geography and particularities of heritage, on both the Arab and international levels.

The activities of the Cultural Heritage Forum include:

- Exhibitions.
- Symposiums.
- Lectures.

Al-Turath Publishing

Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation published a wide range of books around the subject of heritage encompassing Saudi, Arab, Islamic or more generally human heritage, reflecting its interest in translating books dealing with heritage in all its various aspects. As a part of this effort, Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation published a series of documentary books about the kings of Saudi Arabia, highlighting aspects of their personalities and achievements in various fields of endeavor.

The Foundation has also produced books on the history of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, its regions, the stages of its development, customs and traditions, and cultural and civilizational heritage in general. They are a record of the impressions of explorers and seasoned travelers and their memoirs about the country and include anecdotes and pictures of the Arabian Peninsula taken during Historic times. The production of these books was a result of either an initiative or funding from the foundation or by the other sectors interested in documenting the heritage of the Kingdom and the achievements of its civilization.

Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation's oversight committee was keen to examine and audit the books before they were published to ensure that the books have a direct correlation with the history and heritage of the Kingdom. The books published by the Foundation have covered various regions of the Kingdom, where contribution was made to its history by events and notable individuals who have travelled through and observed these areas.

The books published by Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation, whether in Arabic or English present novelty, depth, richness of information, scientific discourse, as well as the idiosyncratic observations of the travelers which are by definition personal yet give a close-up picture of life on the Arabian Peninsula at the time when information and documentations was scarce.

Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation published a number of books, each of which has closely defined targets, and ensuring that the heritage dimension features in them.

The Foundation was in charge of publishing the 'Arriyadh Magazine' for years, and has worked to develop it to meet the objectives of the Arriyadh Municipality.

Al-Turath also issues a monthly press file, which reports on the heritage news in the Arab and Muslim worlds, utilizing technology industry standards to print digital versions. Thus, publication is an important part of the Foundations aim to meet its objectives in raising awareness of the importance of heritage and its contribution to the dissemination of culture.

Prince Sultan bin Salman Award for Urban Heritage

Maintaining urban heritage is a national and cultural necessity to highlight the identity of society and the nobility of its history. Architectural heritage offers a reference to the authenticity of the people and a source for raising the profile of the past and its lessons in order to interpret and explain both the present and the future. Based on this recognition, His Royal Highness Prince Sultan bin Salman bin Abdul-Aziz, founder and Chairman of Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation, has established a national award for urban heritage. The award aims at promoting awareness of the importance of urban heritage, thereby confirming the characteristics of Architectural Heritage of the Kingdom in the context of Arab and Islamic architectural heritage. The award is an incentive for creativity in the areas of urban heritage preservation and highlights the modern urban models.

The Prince Sultan bin Salman Award for Urban Heritage seeks to promote awareness of the significance of the preservation of urban heritage, and to encourage addressing it as a starting point for a better quality future urbanization. King Salman, May Allah protect him, has been granted the award for meritorious efforts made in order to preserve the national heritage, and his contributions specifically in the development of urbanization in Riyadh.

Since the construction and urbanism is a matter of record through the centuries it testifies to the great efforts of the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, may Allah protect him, in the development of Riyadh, when he was the Crown Prince. Under his guidance, Riyadh grew from a small town, half a century ago, to Saudi Arabia's nerve center of the arts, architecture and national administration.

The Custodian's efforts made in preserving the Architectural heritage in Riyadh are outstanding, particularly in the development of the center of Riyadh, which turned the Historic Royal palace into a unique architectural heritage with a modern function. It has become one of the historic landmarks of Riyadh. Similarly, the King Abdul Aziz Historic Center project is a witness of King Salman's efforts in the construction, linking future generations with their timeless Historic identity, and supplying the citizens of the future with a proud physical record of the past, with its splendor and pride.

The efforts of the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, may Allah protect him, in the completion of diverse environmental projects have transformed dreams into a reality, seen by thousands every day.

They included the development of Wadi Hanifah valley, which has become a vibrant green strip of parkland transformed from dangerous rocky and flash-flood prone wadi that threatened the population of Riyadh.

The transfiguration of this natural feature, central to Riyadh's social history, would alone mark King Salman as a man of formidable action for present and future generations.

The Logo

Al-Turath

His Royal Highness Prince Sultan bin Salman bin Abdulaziz, founder and president of Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation, conceived with Dr. Ahmed Mostafa the design of the logo for Al-Turath Philanthropy Foundation, which embodies its identity, and represents an authentic it in a symbol consisting of the following:

- A white frame that takes on a rectangular shape and embraces the date palm, which represents heritage, indicating human awareness of its heritage value.
- Another white frame that matches blends in the words “Al-Turath in the roots”.
- The two words “Al-Turath” reflect one another and form the roots of the palm tree.
- A tall palm tree whose branches are formed from the repeated word Al-Turath repeated six times.
- The letters thaa from the word Al-Turath sit like a crown on top of the palm tree.
- A green background expresses Al-Turath space represented by the date palm tree.

Reflecting on the palm tree in the logo, Dr. Ahmed Mustafa says “that good Al-Turath is like a good tree with stable roots and rising to the skies.

As you can see, the word “Al-Turath” is woven into every detail of this palm tree, and all that is linked to it, whether in its soil or its environment as represented by the space set in bounded by the frame, which in turn reflects human awareness of what he incorporates, in this case it represents the human awareness of the heritage.

Dr. Ahmed Mostafa then added:

“I found it wise to confirm and consolidate this concept of nature, by showing the vertical balance in a way that avoids monotony, I have found - through experience - that placing the letter Thaa in the direction of the axes on which the fronds are attached, creates a visual vitality that is a source of dialogue and appeal with the form, and to control this vitality a series of these thaa letters were deliberately designed in a manner to indicate growth and sublimity creating a crown quasi invisible at the top of this palm tree, or as if structural skeleton upon which the top of this palm tree is built”.
